Four EBRPSS Office Professionals Earn Advanced Certificates

Baton Rouge, La. – Four member of the East Baton Rouge Parish School System’s (EBRPSS) classified staff have completed the Professional Standards Program from the National Association of Educational Office Professionals (NAEOP) and have earned the distinction of being a Certified Educational Office Employees (CEOE).

Those earning the distinction include:

- Tanya Brumfield, administrative assistant for Area I Elementary Schools; former president of the East Baton Rouge Parish Association of Educational Office Professionals; and president-elect of the Louisiana Association of Educational Office Professionals.
- Debbie Breland, steno clerk III for the Exceptional Student Services (ESS) Department.
- Marilynn Stokes, executive school secretary for the ESS Department.
- Rochelle Perry, executive secretary for the director of the ESS Department.

NAEOP’s mission is to provide professional growth opportunities, leadership and service for employees in education through a specifically-designed certification program, quality training, a network for sharing information and ideas, recognition of achievements and fellowship. It provides the opportunity through the Professional Standards Program for members to enhance their professional competencies through academic programs, conferences and institutes, which enable members to take progressive steps to professional growth.
